I.D.F. bomb, shell terror bases, catch 5 senior Syrian officers

Lebanese say 48 killed

BEIRUT (AP). — Israel ground and air forces attacked Lebanon in two places yesterday and killed 48 persons, reports from the government and terrorist organizations said.

The government said 14 civilians were killed and 25 wounded in Hasbaya, a farming township on the western slopes of Mt. Hermon, that was the target of an Israeli air and artillery bombardment. One witness described the four-hour attack as unprecedented in damage and casualties since the 1967 war.

Terrorists, who have bases in villages around the town, reported 30 of their men killed and 30 wounded. A terrorist base on the outskirts of the town took a direct hit and was destroyed, witnesses said.

Premier Saeb Salam summoned terrorist leader Yasser Arafat to an emergency meeting in Beirut while President Suleiman Franjeh was in session with the Cabinet. The Foreign Minister was instructed to file a complaint with the Security Council.

The Lebanese army statement said Israel forces led by five tanks and three half tracks intercepted the military delegation as it toured the Lebanon area. A statement said one Lebanese vehicle was destroyed and two cars carrying the Syrians were "missing."

The day's events comprised the biggest Israeli raid on South Lebanon since the four-day incursion in late February and air attacks in March, and Lebanese sources saw it as retaliation for the terrorist attack on an Israeli bus on Tuesday in which two persons were wounded.

Syria last night demanded the release of the five officers. In Damascus a Foreign Ministry spokesman, quoted by UPI, said of the capture: "This treacherous act affirms the aggressive intentions of the Zionist authorities and indicates aggressive new plans."

The Lebanese opened fire at close quarters. In the ensuing engagement the occupants of the cars were taken prisoners. They included, in addition to the Syrian officers, one Lebanese intelligence captain, one enlisted man and three gendarmes.

Time out for Mapam ILP

THE decision in the Knesset yesterday to defer the vote on Mr. Hauser's civil marriage bill will give all the parties involved a chance to take stock. It had looked as though events had taken on a momentum of their own, including the control of chief actors in the drama.

When, during the past fortnight, the question of Mr. Hauser's bill was high on the agenda of the various party forums, there was never any thought that it could lead to a Cabinet crisis. Mrs. Meir did not want it, nor did Mapam or the Independent Liberals. On the contrary each party probably believed that one or the other would concede something at the last moment to avert a crisis.

As a result both the ILP and Mapam tried to strengthen their bargaining power by tying their own hands, that is by having their higher party forums commit them irrevocably to the bill.

In the crunch, Mrs. Meir refused to be pushed. Her determination came as a surprise to Mapam and the ILP, and had it been clear earlier perhaps the brink might have been avoided. But her firmness might also have been predicted. For submission to what amounts to a breach of the coalition agreement would bring in its wake comparable disruption from the NRP and erode the very possibility of coalition rule.

The postponement of the vote will give Mapam and the ILP time to enlarge their focus and attend to the real business at hand. For the ILP this means determining whether their interests and principles in fact demand the kind of tactic on which they have embarked and which could bring about a different government or premature elections. And for Mapam the question is not simply a new government but election from the "ground" well.

It is evident that there are elements in both parties who are prepared to opt for these extremes. But such a willingness to go over the brink would involve the entire range of issues and interests — foreign and domestic — which constitute the parties' platforms and postures.

Neither Mapam nor the ILP has yet aired its moves in terms of this larger context — at least as far as the public can be aware. And while extremists in each party might be willing to appear to go to the barricades on a single issue, the public desires a broader justification for disruption of a government just as it wants a broader justification when it is asked to support a government, or for that matter, a party.

In this case precipitate action by Mapam and the ILP appears all the more unjustified since what Mrs. Meir and the Labour Party are really asking for is more time. They hope that even during the life of the present Knesset the Rabbinate will find a way to solve the problems of those now barred from marriage. And if that does not materialize, Labour expects to introduce such provisions in its electoral plank in 1973.

Thus the present dispute is anything but a matter of "conscience." It is much more a matter of political tactics which suddenly got out of hand, and which can only boomerang against the interests and political purposes of the two parties which set it in motion.

Cabinet crisis averted as civil marriage vote put off

By ASHER WALLFISH and HIRSH GOODMAN
Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporters

A coalition crisis was averted yesterday when the Alignment and minor coalition partner, the Independent Liberals, agreed to defer a vote on the latter's motion for limited civil marriage. The deferment had been requested by Mapam — Labour's partner in the Alignment — which was hesitant about going to the extreme of voting for the bill, following Prime Minister Golda Meir's announcement on Tuesday that she would resign if it did so.

The motion, presented in the Knesset yesterday by Mr. Gideon Hauser, was debated but then the House agreed to put off the vote. Mrs. Meir, who replied to Mr. Hauser in her capacity as Acting Justice Minister, conceded that the problem of Jews whom the rabbis refuse to marry because of Halachic disqualifications was serious and difficult. The problem must be studied and solutions found, said Mrs. Meir. However, she went on, the Government had not and would not go into the issue as raised by Mr. Hauser because of the fact that a coalition agreement once signed must be upheld. The bill was a breach of this agreement.

Agreements between parties had been written into the law of the land, Mrs. Meir said, as the only means of maintaining orderly government. Parties to mutual agreements could not be permitted to interpret them unilaterally. When the ILP, signed the coalition agreement in 1969, said the difficult situation of the question of marriage and divorce — but just as aware that the agreement was binding.

The Government, she said, was far from happy to apply Coalition discipline to the vote on the ILP's bill, and had decided to do so with great regret. The Alignment had travelled a long and fateful road alongside the ILP, and they had lived through difficult times together, Mrs. Meir said.

HAUSER'S PLEA
Mr. Hauser, the ILP faction chairman, presenting his bill, charged that the Rabbinate had never shown itself less flexible than it was today in Israel. As a result, outdated and archaic social systems which clashed with present-day concepts were preventing people from setting up families and leading normal lives. Prohibitions to which rabbis in the Diaspora paid no attention were being imposed once again here.

Mr. Hauser said that, whereas in past times, the rabbis had not been assiduously hunting out mamzerim the rabbis had made the mamzerim issue more acute of late. "They are forgetting them out."

He further charged that the rabbis here had suddenly begun investigating whether men wishing to marry suffered any impairment of their sexual organs (which disqualified them for union with Jews under the Halacha). Even the victims of Nazi concentration camp experiments were being denied the right to marry.

There should be no bar today to marriage between a cohen and a divorcee, he said, because no stigma attached to divorcees while the cohen no longer had a leadership role.

Mr. Hauser quoted the Supreme Court's view that while the terms of the marriage ceremony must follow Torah prescription, according to Israel law, the partners to the ceremony were not affected by Torah prohibitions. The rabbis would have the same authority under his bill as now, and every couple wishing to marry would be compelled to apply to the Beit Din first. Only if the rabbinical court refused to marry them, would they have recourse to a civil ceremony.

Mapam leaders outvoted

Jerusalem Post Staff
The Mapam Secretariat decided yesterday morning by 21 votes to 12 that the party's Knesset faction would support the Hauser Bill on civil marriage, despite opposition from the party's "historic" leadership. The Secretariat also decided, however, to seek ratification of this decision by the party's 100-man Political Committee. Only last week, this latter body had decided to vote with the Independent Liberals.

At yesterday's Secretariat meeting, Mapam's veteran leadership called on the Knesset faction to abstain in the vote, because they felt that should the Government resign, as a result of Mapam support for the Independent Liberals, the consequence might be the formation of a National Unity Government including Gahal.

The young Mapam wing, managed by Kibbutz Arzi, managed to swing a majority in the Secretariat with the argument that Mapam could not afford a "bad public image" at this time, nor could it refuse to support Mr. Hauser in a cause the party has supported for the past two decades. The general feeling was that there was little sense in remaining in the government without the Independent Liberals, and in a Coalition where the power of the National Religious Party would be reinforced.

Mr. Ya'acov Hazan reported that Mrs. Meir had told him that she has absolutely no intention of standing for Premier after her current term of office, due to expire in 15 months time. Mr. Hazan saw this as a clear indication that her threat to resign was a serious one, and not a tactical ploy. She had reiterated to him, he said, Mapam's collective responsibility in the Coalition and refused point blank to consider absolving Mapam of responsibility on matters of religion.

The view offered by Mr. Dov Zaklin — who together with Mrs. Haika Grossman were the only two Mapam Knesset Members who voted with the Secretariat majority — was that if the Independent Liberals drop out of the Coalition, the Government would crumble. In the end, it was resolved to get Twenty-one demonstrators were arrested last night outside the Alhambra theatre, Jaffa, as a licensed Jewish Defence League demonstration against pacifism. Protesters threw fruit, vegetables and stones, causing damage to the theatre's entrance doors. Thirteen of those arrested are to be charged with assaulting policemen. A Police spokesman said (earlier story, page 10).

ARAB TRIUMVIRS CONFER IN EGYPT

Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Monitor
The presidential council of the Federation of Arab Republics — Anwar Sadat of Egypt, Gen. Hafes Al-Assad of Syria and Col. Muammar Gaddafi of Libya — met behind closed doors last night at Mersa Matrouh, Cairo Radio reported.

Matrouh, the Egyptian port, at noon yesterday and was received by the Egyptian President, who congratulated his guest on the successful surgical operation he underwent on Monday. Earlier, Gen. Idi Amin, President of Uganda, also arrived at Mersa Matrouh, and was greeted by President Sadat.

The federation presidents and Gen. Amin met for half an hour, but no statement was issued on their talks. The present session of the presidential council is expected to last four days, having on its agenda the political and military situation in the Middle East and recent developments in the area following Mr. Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union. The agenda also includes means to activate "the Palestine resistance."

Ancona hit by new quake ANCONA, Italy (Reuters). — Another violent earthquake last night hit the already battered Adriatic port of Ancona, causing people still in the city to flee again into the country. An observatory near here said the latest quake registered seven points on the 12-point Mercalli scale. The new shock came as the city was beginning to recover from two powerful quakes a week ago, which killed three persons from heart failure, injured dozens and damaged hundreds of buildings.

Security Council consensus

Hijack move lacks teeth

By ANTHONY GOODMAN
UNITED NATIONS (Reuter). — The Security Council has condemned interference with civil aviation and called for measures against those responsible, but without holding out any threats of punitive action against countries which fail to comply.

In a consensus adopted last night without a formal meeting or vote, the Council called on states "to take all appropriate measures within their jurisdiction to deter and prevent such acts and to take effective measures to deal with those who commit such acts."

The statement, a softened version of a United States draft first circulated a week ago, also invited states "to expand and intensify cooperative international efforts" to ensure the maximum possible safety and reliability of international civil aviation.

Observers regarded the draft as serving mainly to point the way for action by individual governments, for example by tightening up their own anti-hijacking legislation and ratifying existing international accords against air piracy.

Can't pretend

"I do not think we can pretend for a moment that a statement of this nature will end hijacking," said Ambassador George Bush of the U.S., one of the prime movers behind the consensus.

"But what we think it might do is to give some points that governments might single out in going to their various governmental agencies or parliament, in order to take action — perhaps to ratify conventions that are in existence, perhaps to redouble their efforts in the ICAO, a U.N. specialized agency (International Civil Aviation Organization)."

Some observers believe attention will now increasingly focus on the ICAO, a U.N. specialized agency based in Montreal, which this week adopted a resolution that could eventually lead to sanctions against countries harbouring hijackers.

The Security Council consensus, read to reporters by this month's Council President, Ambassador Lazar Mojsov of Yugoslavia, came less than 18 hours after air line pilots ended a world-wide one-day stoppage to dramatize their demand for U.N. actions against air piracy.

A careful Council

The consensus fell far short of the pilots' call for drastic measures against countries giving sanctuary to hijackers. The Council was also careful to issue its statement only after the strike had ended, in order not to appear to be acting under duress.

A formal resolution, voted on and adopted at a regular Council session, would probably have carried greater weight, observers believe. But members preferred not to risk a public debate, which might have developed into a bitter wrangle on the Middle East situation, or some other highly-charged topic.

The hard bargaining needed to secure agreement on a relatively innocuous draft, indicated the virtual impossibility of even trying to obtain agreement on actions in the U.N., a position shared by many other members of the world body.

Sen. McGovern hears the New York results.

McGovern sweeps New York

By CARL LEUBSDORF
NEW YORK (AP). — U.S. Senator George McGovern on Tuesday captured a massive majority of New York's 278 Democratic Party convention delegates, winning the last presidential preference primary of 1972.

The victory carries him within 200 votes of a first ballot victory at next month's Democratic National Convention, where 1,509 votes will be needed to nominate. Nearly complete totals early yesterday showed McGovern was likely to surpass 250 of New York state's 278 delegates, well above his predicted target of 200.

The smashing McGovern victory overshadowed a series of hotly fought Democratic Congressional races, highlighted by the Brooklyn contest in which 30-year-old Elizabeth Holtzman unseated 84-year-old Representative Emanuel Celler, the Dean of the U.S. House of Representatives and long-time Chairman of its Judiciary Committee. Another woman, the flamboyant Representative Bella Abzug, lost her house seat to Representative William Ryan in a district combined by reapportionment.

The Democratic presidential preference primary results, a contest in which voters chose delegates without any ballot listing of presidential candidate, were a setback to Senators Hubert Humphrey and Edmund Muskie, who are trying to block McGovern's nomination. Humphrey had hoped for election of many uncommitted delegates, Muskie for some of his own supporters.

But McGovern ended up winning practically all of the 237 spots for which his delegates ran. McGovern's total assured him of at least 25 of the 30 New York delegates to be named on Saturday by the State Democratic Committee in proportion to the primary results. Besides the spots won by McGovern, Representative Shirley Chisholm captured four of the six delegates in her own congressional district.

McGovern went into the New York primary with 1,077.3 assured first-ballot votes, 431.7 short of the 1,509 needed to win the nomination. Besides the 30 New York delegates to be named on Saturday, 42 other delegates will be chosen this weekend — 27 in Arkansas, 12 in Delaware and two in Nebraska.

As McGovern celebrated his 10th primary victory in 23 contests over the past 3 1/2 months, he alluded to recent criticism from Humphrey and Muskie in noting that "because we do represent a new coalition of political forces in this country, there are some who have expressed fears about us. They have nothing to be alarmed about," he added. "We want harmony and justice, not bitterness and special privilege..."

SECRET DOCUMENTS

U.S. warned France off Vietnam 25 years ago

By SPENCER DAVIS
WASHINGTON (AP). — THE U.S. in secret documents made public on Tuesday, warned France 25 years ago the Vietnam struggle was playing into Communist hands and asked the French Government to be "most generous" in seeking an early solution.

The advice came after a purported cease-fire offer in 1947 from Vietnam Communist leader Ho Chi Minh went astray under mysterious circumstances.

Declaring the U.S. had "no solutions or plans to intervene," then Secretary of State George Marshall predicted, "we fear continuation of the conflict may jeopardize the position of all western democratic powers in southern Asia and lead to the very eventualities of which we are most apprehensive." He urged France to be "most generous" in the attempt to find an early solution which, by recognizing the legitimate desires of the Vietnamese, will restore peace and deprive anti-democratic forces of a powerful weapon."

The message to the U.S. Embassy in Paris for the information of French authorities was part of a massive 1,159 page volume of classified documents detailing U.S. Foreign relations in the Far East in 1947.

Although Franco-American differences over Vietnam policy were reported at the time, the documents provided a new light on the degree of difference. At another point Marshall cautioned against the creation of "an impotent puppet government through the restoration of Emperor Bao Dai," saying it implied that the democracies were reduced to resorting to monarchy as a weapon against Communism.

In another urgent dispatch to Paris, Marshall snapped: "We do not lose sight of the fact that Ho Chi Minh has direct Communist connections... It should be obvious we are not interested in seeing colonial empire administration supplanted by the philosophy and political organization emanating from and controlled by the Kremlin. But the fact remains, however, the situation in Indo-China can no longer be considered local in character."

The cease-fire offer was reported to have been sent by a Vietnamese messenger bearing a letter of invitation for French Overseas Minister Marius Moutet to meet with Ho. The messenger disappeared under unexplained circumstances and the French said the letter from Ho had never been received.

According to the U.S. Consul in Hanoi, James O'Sullivan, at that early date Ho was prepared to propose a cease-fire supervised by mixed commissions on all fronts with troops returning to positions defined by an agreement that had been reached on April 3, 1946. It would include the release of all prisoners, political and otherwise. It called for a halt to all French reinforcements on their way to Indo-China and an immediate meeting of qualified representatives to organize a referendum vote and to place Vietnam into the French union.

NIXON NAMES ABRAMS NEW ARMY C.O.S.

General Creighton Abrams, left, leaves Vietnam after being named Army Chief of Staff.

WASHINGTON (AP). — President Nixon announced on Tuesday that he will nominate Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, now the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, to be U.S. Army Chief of Staff.

He will replace Gen. William C. Westmoreland, 68, who is retiring on July 3 with the rank of four-star general.

Meanwhile, Mr. Nixon also announced that he is reappointing Adm. Thomas Moorer, 60, for another two-year term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

No successor for Gen. Abrams in Saigon was announced.

THE question of the Hyatt Hotel towers on Mount Scopus has not yet been settled, with the Hyatt people holding that only vertical tower buildings pay their way nowadays. Most of us do not want even one additional tower in Jerusalem, to help put in their proper perspective such more modest structures as the Western Wall and the Dome of the Rock and show them up as old-fashioned and inconvenient; while others hold that Mount Scopus has been so much messed about already, that another tower will not make any difference. Our contemporary, the "Asian," has a sketch of the new Hyatt hotel planned for Ball, showing an attractive complex of three hollow squares, each four stories high, because there is a rule in Ball that no structure may be higher than a coconut tree. The writer also notes that this is the way resort hotels are now planned, and that towers are out of fashion.

THE manager of a large Jerusalem hotel says he had some unpleasantness recently with a prospective guest, a Mr. X, who cancelled his booking and was to get back the $50 deposit he had paid. The money was delayed in the post or at the bank, and Mr. X wrote outraged, that he would deduct $10 from his usual U.S.A. contribution for every dollar he was owed by the hotel, so the manager would have a loss of $500 on his conscience. The hotel manager wrote another appealing letter to Mr. X and sent a copy to the U.J.A. They wrote back to him saying that this was very interesting, as Mr. X had ceased some years back to feature in their list of contributors, and sent him a copy. As the money has meanwhile arrived, he owes the U.J.A. at least $500.

'LIBERAL' MINISTER GOES

By STANLEY UYS
CAPE TOWN (Omas). — THE resignation of South Africa's Minister of the Interior, Mr. Theo Gerdener, is seen in Cape Town as dramatic confirmation of the government's developing swing to the Right — and as a possible attempt to create a third, extra-parliamentary grouping that will cut across the rigidly-drawn lines separating the government and opposition parties.

Mr. John Vorster's Cabinet clearly has become too small to contain Mr. Gerdener and his "right" ("liberal") views. It appears that Mr. Gerdener twice proffered his resignation to Mr. Vorster this year, but that Mr. Vorster asked him to stay on until the end of the parliamentary session.

In a statement, Mr. Gerdener said he wanted to "give my full attention to the improvement of race relations in South Africa and the strengthening of relations between South Africa and the other anti-Communist States in South Africa."

As the Leader of the Opposition, Sir de Villiers Graaff, has pointed out though, Mr. Gerdener's "frustrations and disillusionment must be complete for him to feel that his objectives can be better achieved as a lone wolf than as a minister of influence in the ruling party in South Africa."

Mr. Gerdener first clashed publicly with his Cabinet colleagues in November last year, when he warned that there could be "murder and violence in South Africa unless the gap between white and non-white living standards was narrowed."

He was publicly repudiated by the Minister of Information, Dr. Connie Mulder, a right-winger with aspirations to succeed Mr. Vorster as Prime Minister, and by another premiership aspirant, the Minister of Labour, Mr. Marais Viljoen.

Mr. Gerdener, however, stuck to his guns. It is known, too, that Mr. Gerdener disagrees with the Cabinet's recent tactic of whipping up long-animating animosities between Afrikaans-speaking and English-speaking whites, and also with its brutal handling of the student demonstrations two weeks ago.

Mr. Gerdener is being careful to confine his statements at present to the framework of government aims, but a close analysis of his past record shows that he is in fundamental conflict with some of Mr. Vorster's most basic policies. The Government Press here is busily trying to diminish the impact of his resignation by suggesting that he never fully recovered from a serious motor accident in July 1970, in which he suffered severe head injuries and had to undergo major brain surgery.

How much travel and accommodation can $250 buy nowadays? Not much, Mr. Scharf says. "Even for a modest trip you need at least $20 per day for Europe and $35 for North America. And this does not include shopping."

As a result, Mr. Scharf believes, "well over half of all Israel travellers must have more than $250 for their journey. He thinks the Treasury people know very well that they are either leaving the country with more than the allocation they purchased from their banks, or are getting it overseas."

Repeated appeals to the Treasury by the Travel and Touring Association, for an increase in the allotment, have been ignored. As a result, the Israeli returning from his holiday abroad usually reads an answer for that inevitable question that will be shot at him by his friends and neighbours: "How did you manage?"

JAPAN BUILDS TOURIST SUB

By EDUARDO LACHOJA TOKYO (ANS). — A Tokyo-based company is building civilian submarines for sale or lease to resort hotels, travel companies and other enterprises interested in underwater tourism.

The Japan Oceanology Centre has the first of its 109-ton, 30-passenger Mark III "towed submersible vehicles" ready for trial runs in Tokyo bay. The 20.7-metre craft will be delivered to a Saipan company which will offer 45-minute tours of the islands' spectacular coral beds at $8 a ride.

The six-year-old J.O.C. is a direct offshoot of the new ocean technology being developed by the Japanese government with the backing of major Mitsubishi heavy industries and Ishikawa-Harima industries.

Its moving spirit is 31-year-old Hajime Sawatori who switched from writing novels to deep-sea research because there is more adventure and romance in this real-life enterprise. He cut short a promising career with one of the big Zaisatsu firms to study oceanology and deep-sea diving techniques in California.

The idea to build tourist subs came naturally to Sawatori. "The ocean is the last place worth exploring on earth," he said. "Only a few people are trained to skidive 10 metres or more so why not take the rest down in submarines?"

The imaginative young man hired some engineers who had experience building imperial navy submarines during the war, resurrected the blueprints of these old U-boats and was soon in business. The Mark II is quite different from any other submersible yet designed. It does not have its own power plant. The engineers felt that a battery-operated engine would be too noisy and more space was needed to accommodate 30 passengers with comfort. There was also the cost factor. The sub had to be cheap enough to operate profitably.

The Mark III will be towed by a tugboat on the surface but it has all the other gear needed for submerged running. It resembles the fuselage of a passenger plane with a two-man crew seated up front and 15 swivel chairs arranged on either side of the cabin, each passenger to have his own viewing port. It has a maximum depth of 20 metres but ideally it will be cruising at 10 metres where the best view of the coral reefs and their colourful marine life can be had.

The sub has a pair of fin-like elevators in the fore section and an airplane-style tail assembly to control trim and lateral movement. Eight ballast tanks built into the sides have a capacity of 20.8 tons of water and there are two other tanks holding 8.4 tons to help trim the vessel.

J.O.C. has a more sophisticated self-propelled sub on the drawing boards. Its prospective buyers will use it for research purposes.

The Mark III will cost about $500,000. Sawatori figures that if it makes the maximum number of 10 voyages a day at full capacity its owner can earn $80,000 a month. At this rate the investment can be fully amortized in less than nine months.

War toys banned in California

By JACK LEFLER LOS ANGELES (AP). — Toy bombs, grenades and torture instruments are being removed from shelves of California stores to meet the July 1 deadline of new state law aimed at reducing violent influences on children's playtime.

The law, passed at the current session of the legislature, prohibits manufacture or sale of such toys and provides for fines up to 300 dollars. It is believed the first of its kind in the country.

Most major merchants checked disclaimed handling these toys in any great volume and said the demand for them had dwindled because of antiwar feeling and alarm over increasing crime.

Assemblyman John Burton of San Francisco, who introduced the legislation, commented this past week: "We are indoctrinated toward violence. We have enough of that sort of thing around without encouraging kids (children) in it. The next step would be to ban sophisticated war toys. Anything that makes war and violence attractive and inviting is a bad thing. How anyone can label these things as toys is beyond me."

The law specifically exempts "any model of an aircraft, ship, motor vehicle, railroad engine, car or rocketship of other spacecraft" from the ban. It does not apply to toy guns.

The male calendar pinup

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP). — The leggy, often blonde or coffee-skinned nude beauty on calendars all over the country may soon be replaced by a pretty man. Whites, blacks and mulattoes, weightlifters, karate experts and simple unknowns, they all paraded in their underwear recently before the producers of Brazil's first male nude calendars scheduled for release in September.

"They'll be naked, but without shocking anybody. We're going to focus artfully on the strategic points," Eduardo Casali told a Brazilian reporter in Rio. Casali, a 50-year-old resident of Rio de Janeiro, says he got his inspiration from a Swiss calendar. He already publishes a Brazilian imitation of "Playboy" magazine called "Gentleman."

But the days of showing delicate female lines appears likelier. "Now it's the time for masculine beauty, perfect heads and trunks, all to the delight of women, who are the main buyers of the calendars," he said.

Planes exempt

The law specifically exempts "any model of an aircraft, ship, motor vehicle, railroad engine, car or rocketship of other spacecraft" from the ban. It does not apply to toy guns.

The Toy Manufacturers of America, an industry organization based in New York, says the California law is the only one of its kind in the country.

ALIGNMENT LIST

Israel Labour Party - Mapam
to the 10th Congress of the Clerks,
Administrative and Service Workers Union

A PERSONAL MESSAGE TO THE VOTER

MOSHE BAR-TAL
General Secretary of the Clerks' Union

Dear Voter,

Four years of work and achievement have passed since the last election. On Tuesday, June 27, 1972, we shall renew our institutions in elections to the 10th Congress of the Clerks, Administrative and Service Workers Union, and to the branch councils.

100,000 clerks, administrative and service workers, organized in seven sections will vote for the first time on a sectional basis. This is not a technical, external change; this is a historic turning point in our history. The new electoral system aims to strengthen the contact between you and your representatives, to enable real representation to the places of work. And all this—to enhance the strength and standing of the Union, and especially its functional ability towards greater achievements in coming years.

We, the members of the Alignment, are proud that this important change came about on our initiative. When we suggested to reform the electoral system to a sectional one, all the opposition factions united against the change. Why? Simply for convenience and for the preservation of their own party interests, irrespective of the virtue of the case itself.

I do not intend to enumerate all our achievements which have contributed to the improvement in the standard of living of the worker, and to the regard in which he is held by the general public. Only this I do wish to point out: We, the members of the Alignment in the Union were the first to obtain for our members an advanced comprehensive system of social security. The struggle of the production workers to achieve the same conditions that are in force with us, is sufficient proof of this. The policy of sectional employment scales.

We alone have met the changes that time has demanded. It would not be an empty claim on my part to point to the achievement of sectional employment salary scales. Mindful of the specializations demanded by modern conditions we came to the view that the interests of all would be best served if each individual could find room for advancement within his own particular branch, or specific occupation. A subsequent hereto, we call upon the Histadrut to abandon the general structure which no longer meets the needs of the hour. After 24 years of statehood, I am convinced that the time has come for a complete change in the determination of salary scales, on the part of all interested parties.

The technological advances to be expected in the 'seventies will inevitably lessen the differences between blue-collar and white-collar workers. Nevertheless, in a welfare state like ours the ever-increasing social services provided will bring after them increased needs for administrative and service employees. Nor will this be merely a quantitative increase. This process demands of each of us that we improve the level of the services provided to the individual and to the public.

Expansion of vocational training. To this end we shall work, as we have in the past, towards extending in-service training, and towards a heightened awareness of the concept of service to the public, as befits modern administration. Therefore we have decided to set up a training fund, which shall be financed by the employers.

I admit, and with no feeling of shame, that we of the Alignment have not succeeded in everything, and have sometimes made mistakes. And further—in the actual execution of our programmes we encountered a growing menace of bureaucracy, which menace must be eradicated from its source. The moral responsibility now devolves upon us to see to a heightening of the moral standards within which we operate, and to undertake to improve these conditions which will make the life of the individual better. The opposition factions have grouped themselves together in order to attack us, while they themselves are unable to point to any positive achievement on their part. Apart from empty words, they have nothing to offer or any improvements to make in our professional spheres.

In the coming four years we will work to guard the real income of our members, to improve their standard of living, their social security, and their social status.

Against this basic platform of ours, what do the opposition factions offer? What solutions do they suggest for our specific problems? The answer is: they have no constructive suggestions!

In order that we may carry out our platform and meet the needs of the hour, we need a strong union, that can therefore act. The well-being of each individual member rests upon this fact. For our strength is your guarantee of betterment.

I therefore call upon you personally: don't fall prey to the charms of small, powerless lists. Lend your weight to our cause, by going out and voting. And vote for the ALIGNMENT List — The Israel Labour Party — Mapam.

Sincerely,

G-D-N

SECTIONAL HEADS on the ALIGNMENT LIST

In the light of the special nature of our financial and economic institutions, we aim to find a balance between salary scales from the viewpoints of the needs of the employees and of the institution. We aim to strengthen the central pension fund, in order to enhance its credibility.

In the future we shall strive to increase to 12 days the paid holiday period, and the payment of fees in accordance with real costs. That all our programmes may be enacted we call upon you to vote for the ALIGNMENT.

EPHRAIM

Nor do we intend to lean back in the future, satisfied with what we have achieved. The plan of action before us for the future is detailed, and the work abounds.

We will not achieve the advancement of the employees in our section without your full support for our experienced and devoted representatives. Do not be misled into following empty slogans of others. Strengthen our hand by voting ALIGNMENT.

MOSHE

ELIAHU

Secretary — Bank employees section:

In the past few years significant changes have taken place in our professional field. Amongst others we have been witnesses to the mergers of banks which might have negated all our previous achievements. We therefore utilized the full weight of our responsibility to see to it that the rights of the affected employees would be safeguarded.

Amongst our significant achievements is to be noted the introduction of incentive pay in the field of banking and this over and above advances in salaries and social security.

Like us, you know that we do not promise things that we can not achieve, but what we do promise, we do in fact achieve. You are therefore called upon to support yourself by supporting us, by giving your vote to the ALIGNMENT.

KREIBENBERG

Secretary — National and Public Institutions section:

In the past few years we have seen to the advancement of many in their grades, and in the other facilities due to them such as holiday pay, participation in education fees, betterment of conditions of the working mother, etc.

These achievements have not come to be of themselves. They are the fruits of ceaseless effort on our part, showing that the trust placed in us was not wasted. You are therefore called upon to strengthen our list and to give your vote to the ALIGNMENT.

ELIEZER
KARNI

Secretary — Government Companies and Industries section:

Our past achievements and future programmes show that the trust given us in the past was not misplaced.

As a result of the salary gradings we achieved, the conditions of our members have been greatly improved. In industry we have safeguarded the status of the clerk, so that his conditions of employment should not be adversely affected. I believe that on the day of the elections you will express, through your ballot, your continuing faith in us for the coming four years, that we may further advance.

MENACHEM
UR

Secretary — Marketing and private company workers section:

In the past few years there has been much change in the marketing sector, resulting in changes in marketing. This resulted in basic changes in the salary and social security structure. The new arrangement which we achieved resulted in the advancement of many employees. In some places we brought about the participation of the employees in profits, thereby improving their lot greatly.

These achievements came about as a result of the ceaseless effort in order that there may be further advancement in the future. I call upon you to lend us your hand and to vote for the ALIGNMENT.

AND THIS IS OUR PROGRAMME FOR THE FUTURE

Clerk, Administrative and Service Worker,

THE TIME OF THE ELECTION TO THE 10th CONGRESS OF THE CLERKS, ADMINISTRATIVE AND SERVICE WORKERS UNION IS APPROACHING. AS IN THE PAST, SO IN THE FUTURE, WE SEEK TO ADVANCE YOUR INTERESTS, AND TO WORK FOR NEW ACHIEVEMENTS IN THE FIELD OF SALARY, SOCIAL SECURITY, AND PENSIONS. AND THESE ARE OUR DEMANDS, WHICH YOUR SUPPORT WILL ENABLE US TO ACHIEVE:

- * We shall work to improve the salaries of all employees, being mindful of the real value of their income, that their standard of living may rise.
- * We shall continue to seek the raising of the ceiling of the cost of living allowance, so that it reflects the changes in the level of basic salary, and so that those earning a basic salary of more than IL700 per month will receive real compensation for the rise in prices over the past few years.
- * We shall fight together with the Histadrut against rises in taxes and in prices.
- * We shall lay special emphasis on improving the conditions of those earning low salaries.
- * We shall continue to stand for full equality of pay, and work conditions for Arabs and Druse in local councils and in all other branches of the economy.
- * We shall strive for the completion of the severance pay structure for each year of employment by 2 1/2% of the income of the employee, also for those going on pension. For those who have reached the maximum pension level (70%) before reaching retirement age we shall demand that the further payments made shall be recognized as private savings.

BRANCH HEADS APPEAL TO YOU:

Dear friend,
On the eve of the election to the Clerks' Union I wish to bring to your attention two changes that we have brought about:

- The introduction of the sectional system of election, by which each voter will vote for representatives within his own section. This system will ensure meaningful representation of the voter.
- Delegates to the Congress will be elected on the basis of the actual number of votes cast.

I therefore appeal to you personally, to view your vote as a right, and to use it for the furtherance of your own welfare. You are called upon to cast your vote for the ALIGNMENT.

Sincerely,
A. Bellin
Secretary — Tel Aviv Branch

Dear friend,
The body of clerks, administrative and service workers in Haifa make up a large segment of the total national union. This weight is represented in the voters role of Haifa for the election on June 27th. But the importance of this section of the public is not in its numbers, but rather in the key roles that they will take within the economic sector.

The day of the election is also the day to evaluate the problems and the achievements, since the last elections four years have passed, during which we have been party to the quests of the workers committees, and to the negotiations with the managements towards improvements of conditions of the standard of living of the working public.

Towards the end, we call upon you to renew the mandate of the ALIGNMENT to the Clerks' Union.

Sincerely,
Shmuel Keren
Secretary — Haifa Branch

Dear friend,
On election day, June 27th, more than 11,000 voters in Jerusalem will go to the polls to determine their representatives for the next four years.

The members of our union are spread through more than 200 places of employment in the capital. This public has had devoted representation in the past, and it is a fact that we have brought about achievements of which we can justly be proud. We are particularly proud of the attention we have given to such problems usually leading to its successful solution.

You are therefore asked to give your support again, as we feel that we are worthy of it. Vote for the ALIGNMENT list.

Sincerely,
Chaim Kantman
Secretary — Jerusalem Branch

- * We shall demand overtime pay for all grades of employees.
- * We shall demand automatic scales of advancement either on a professional or periodic basis.
- * We shall strive for readjustment of the grading system to bring about greater gaps between grades, and to the raising of starting salaries.
- * We shall advance the network of in-service training facilities, and shall seek extensions of the participation of employers in the fee of such professional training, in accordance with our belief that this is fitting in the modern system of administration.
- * We shall further improve the conditions of women employees in general, and of working mothers in particular, by creating day creches, by reducing income tax, by shorter working hours for women, by placing women in part-time employment, and by securing equal possibilities for progress.
- * We shall strive to have reinstated those years of seniority reduced by the introduction of the standard scale of grades.
- * We shall operate towards an increase in the number of days of paid holiday, and shall see to it that this payment is exempt of income tax.

The Supreme Court partly allowed an appeal against a judgment of the Haifa District Court delivered on May 26, 1971 (in C.C. 1464/69).

Justice Landau said that he would have been prepared to accept the District Court's estimate of the probable average annual increase in wages during the next 10 years, but he had been convinced by Justice Berinson that, in the light of the "package deal" and other promised increases in wages, the appellant's potential wage should be fixed at an average of 25 per cent above the wage he would have been receiving at the time the District Court judgment was handed down.

Allon says early elections possible

By DAVID LANDAU
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Alon called on the Labour Party last night to prepare itself for snap elections before the end of the present Knesset term in November 1973.

Speaking at the Labour Party Central Committee, Mr. Alon said he had learnt from the events of the last two days, that early elections were a distinct possibility.

Mr. Alon thought that a state of preparedness on the part of Labour might serve to deter rival parties from pushing for elections. Labour's new Secretary-General, Mr. Aharon Yadin — formally elected at last night's faction meeting without opposition — said that the party must not be afraid of taking up the gauntlet if it were cast down by the other parties.

There was standing room only in the auditorium of the Tel Aviv Municipality workers' hall, with members of the Central Committee crowding the aisles to hear the party's leaders on the crisis threatening the government.

It was thought that the Prime Minister would appear, but Mrs. Meir was not present. The main speaker of the evening, Foreign Minister Abba Eban, who was due to deliver a political survey, was also unable to attend — he was feeling unwell.

It was left to the chairman of the coalition, Mr. Moshe Baran, to review the situation between the Labour Alignment and I.L.P. and within the Alignment itself. But Mr. Baran had little to add to the radio reports from the Knesset.

He said the Independent Liberals seem to have been blinded by the media — he could think of no other explanation for their move. He noted that various forums inside Labour were considering the important problem of civil and religious marriages, and thus there was no reason to argue the issue at this committee meeting.

The question at issue at the moment was that of the coalition agreement. Greeting Mr. Yadin on his election, Mr. Alon said that both for himself personally and for the Education Ministry his departure would be a great loss. Those who claimed that Mr. Yadin was a thinker rather than a doer could rest assured, said the Minister, Mr. Yadin had successfully tackled the thorniest administrative problems in the Ministry during their 2½ years of working together.

In his acceptance address, Mr. Yadin outlined three aims for the party before the elections: greater unity, "renewal of spiritual dynamism," and the incorporation of the younger party members in decision-making. He pointed out that half the country's population is under 25 — there was much scope for attracting new members to the Party's ranks. He hoped the election campaign, when it did take place, would be an educational process, and would not descend to personal mud-slinging.

25th Lod victim dies

TEL AVIV. — Isidore Stern of Ramat Gan, one of the victims of the May 30 massacre at Lod Airport, died of his injuries yesterday afternoon at Tel Hashomer Hospital.

Mr. Stern, who was 70, had suffered severe leg and abdominal injuries. Surgeons operated on him repeatedly in their effort to save his life, but without success, due to complications and advanced age.

Stern, the 25th Lod victim to die, is survived by his wife and son. Dr. Cesar Hernandez, the special emissary sent here by the Governor of Puerto Rico, and the Rev. Joseph Abner Monz, who led the group, yesterday visited Sheba Hospital to discuss arrangements for the release of the nine remaining Puerto Rican patients.

Some of the patients are expected to be released today and the remainder by the end of next week. This will leave six Israeli victims still in hospital. They will require lengthy treatment even after they are released.

Wilner 'peace plan' is restatement of 242

By SARAH HONIG
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Rakah Party Secretary, Knesset Member Meir Wilner, last night unfolded a peace plan which he claims has the full support of the U.S.S.R. Speaking to the Rakah national convention, he said he "is certain, it is also backed by Egypt and other progressive states."

The programme involves "full implementation of the November 23, 1967 Security Council resolution and the withdrawal of Israel forces to the June 4, 1967 borders, which would then become 'the peace borders.'"

The two sides would abandon any claim to belligerent status and would respect the "rights of all the peoples in the area, including Israelis and Palestinians. Refugees would be given the choice between returning to what is called their homeland and between accepting compensation. Permanent peace would be contracted, and Israel would be guaranteed freedom of navigation in the Suez Canal, Mr. Wilner said.

The demonstration outside the Alhambra Theatre could be heard echoing daily in his speech.

He went on to condemn the Lod Airport massacre, labelling it a "heinous crime." It only "harmful the anti-occupation struggle and the peace camp." According to Mr. Wilner, Marxists-Leninists, had always "rejected personal terrorism, which blanches their revolutionary cause."

However, true blame for the crime lies not with the terrorists, but with the Israeli leadership, he contended. Mr. Wilner went on to attack "Arab extremists who still talk about the destruction of the State of Israel and the setting up of a multi-religious democratic state."

Such talk he said only serves "the perilous Zionist propaganda." He assured the public that the notion of destroying Israel is no longer cherished in Arab capitals.

SOVIET DELEGATES
Mr. Twik Toubi, who opened the convention, greeted the Soviet delegation, saying that its very presence in the auditorium, "given the current status of relations between Israel and the U.S.S.R., is a sign of the warmth with which the Soviet Union supports Rakah's struggle."

The three-man Soviet delegation to the convention arrived at Lod Airport several hours before the opening. They were: Konstantin Gritshin, member of the Central Committee of the Communist Party and deputy chairman of the State Controls Committee; Mr. Alexander Solomonovits Brinhaus, deputy editor of the "Moskovskaya Pravda," organ of the Moscow Communist Party and the City Council; and Mr. Nicolai Slepov, head of the delegation, who served for six years in the Soviet Embassy in Israel.

Asked to comment on rumours that the Soviet Union was thinking of renewing diplomatic relations with Israel, Mr. Gritshin replied: "I haven't heard of such rumours. I desire a party not a state delegation."

Fraternizing Communist delegations also arrived from Austria, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Cyprus, Czechoslovakia, France, West Germany, Hungary, Italy, Mongolia, Poland, Spain and the U.S.

The Supreme Court has earlier banned Rakah from taking on the role of the Israeli Communist Party, which is already claimed by the rival and pro-Israeli Maki Communist faction.

Summer visitor ordered to return

Jerusalem Post Reporter

A former Nablus school teacher who returned to the West Bank recently under the summer visits scheme was yesterday ordered by the Military Government to return to Jordan.

Miss Shab Shahin, a cousin of the former Communist leader in Nablus, Rushdi Shahin, had been banished to Jordan in September 1969 for seditious activities in her school. Military Government sources gave no reason for the move.

Free-for-all at Rakah convention

Jerusalem Post Reporter

JAFFA. — The pavement in front of the Alhambra Theatre was a battle ground last night for thousands of young demonstrators and club wielding red-necked Rakah youth. Reinforced police units dispatched to the spot separated the warring camps with difficulty.

About 15 persons were reported injured.

The demonstrators, among them many new immigrants from the U.S.S.R., relatives of Prisoners of Zion in Russian jails, members of Betar, the Jewish Defence League, and Dov, local Jafa youngsters and even a few scouts, smashed the Alhambra's glass doors, scattering glass fragments all over the sidewalk.

The demonstrators carried pictures of Jewish prisoners in Soviet camps and chanted rhythmically — "Rakah are Nazis."

Entrance into the Alhambra theatre was difficult. This reporter was threatened with clubs by Rakah guards despite an official Rakah press invitation.

J.D.L. demands U.N. act on Syrian Jewry

Fifteen members of the Jewish Defence League yesterday held an orderly demonstration outside U.N. headquarters at Government House in Jerusalem in protest against the international organization's "ignoring the plight of Syrian Jewry."

The demonstrators handed the local U.N. officials a petition, which they asked to have forwarded to U.N. headquarters in New York, demanding immediate action on behalf of Syria's Jews.

Arrest Warrant for couple who emigrated

HAIFA. — The Magistrate's Court here on Tuesday issued a warrant for the arrest of a Soviet immigrant couple who left Israel, leaving local acquaintances holding the bag for thousands of pounds in debts.

The couple, Luba Breschensky and Nikolai Roytberg, had a Haifa high-school principal active in the Committee for Soviet Immigrants guarantee a IL2,500 Jewish Agency loan before allegedly absconding to the United States. The principal's subsequent complaint to the Police led to the arrest order, which was issued by Magistrate Miriam Starkman-Verinsky.

The pair, who are said to have defrauded others here, are now liable to arrest any time they return to Israel.

Ort pupils enter the space age

TEL AVIV. — Three rockets — Ort I, Ort II and Ort III — were launched precisely on schedule yesterday morning at 8.55 a.m. some two kilometres from the Country Club on the south Herzliya coast.

They were fired by 11th grade pupils of the fine mechanics class of the Ort Boys Vocational School in Ramat Gan, proudly watched by a small crowd of their parents, teachers and schoolmates.

The rockets, 250mm., to 600mm. long and weighing between 400 and 2,700 grams, zoomed into the clouds at a speed of up to 400 metres per second. The first rocket reached a height of several hundred metres, followed by the second. The third rocket blasted off in a thunderous clap of flames and disappeared into the skies. Several seconds later it was seen falling into the sea.

The three pupils who were the moving spirits behind the experiment were Moshe Eltrusch, Ze'ev Buchalter and Ya'acov Guterman, all 15. They were assisted by their teacher, Mr. Oded Kirsh.

Prior to the experiment, the boys fenced off and placed warning signs around the site. Air space was declared off limits to planes for a radius of 10 kilometres.

East Mediterranean ports form club

HAIFA. — Haifa port has joined a newly formed Club of East Mediterranean Ports for the promotion of business and cargo traffic. Port Manager Yisakak Rabay told The Post last night that the decision to establish the club was taken at a meeting of port managers held this week in Trieste.

Mr. Rabay returned from the meeting yesterday. He said that the participants included port managers from Libya, Algeria and Tunisia, as well as from Italy, Greece and Turkey. Representatives from Syria, Egypt and Lebanon, who had been invited, did not turn up.

Trieste businessmen called the meeting, he said. The city has been hard hit by the closure of the Suez Canal and they are interested in drumming up trade.

Administrative irregularities

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Administrative irregularities have been reported by the State Comptroller in the activities of the Senior Regional Council during the period from 1963-64 through 1969-71. The council covers 12 settlements in the Ashkelon region, occupying approximately 96,000 dunams.

A check of payroll records for 1970-71 showed that nine council employees had been paid salaries in excess of the interior ministry grading standards.

The council hired workers without medical examinations despite regulations requiring this.

The council also failed to keep accurate records of its land rights, as required by law. It also did not keep adequate files of furniture and equipment in its offices and educational institutions. Most of this equipment does not carry a label identifying it as council property.

The council did not keep a list of business enterprises which owe it taxes making collection difficult or impossible.

"To your health!"

"People ask us how we stay so young.
I tell them it's because every year we spend at least two or three weeks at a health resort, either in Austria, Luxembourg, Belgium, or Czechoslovakia. It makes for a perfect vacation. You enjoy all the good things of life in a beautiful, relaxed setting."
"And what's more our holiday spirits rise as soon as we board the Sabena jet. Perhaps it's because the Belgians put so much importance on the "Good things in life."
They carry them onto their airline!"

That's why Mr. and Mrs Dagan fly Sabena Belgian World Airlines to the health resorts
